Report Household Changes

No matter which benefits you might be receiving, you can report any changes to your household and add or remove a person, using your idalink account.

If you need verification documents for your change, make sure you have those ready to upload before you start.

Once you log in to your idalink account, look on the left side of your screen for this button:

Report a Change
or
Add a Person

Then, follow the instructions on the screen. You’ll be guided through the process, and we’ll check off each step as you complete it, so you won’t miss anything.

If you are not eligible for health coverage assistance, find a plan that’s right for you with Your Health Idaho.

Apply for Health Coverage Assistance Online

You can apply for health coverage assistance entirely online using your idalink account.

Some questions may require documented proof to verify the information. Before starting your application, it’s a good idea to have all of these documents ready to submit. Visit healthandwelfare.idaho.gov for a full list of required verifications.

Once you have all of your required verifications ready, log in to your idalink account. Then, on the left side of your screen, look for this button:

This will start the application. You will be guided through the process, and we’ll check off each step as you complete it.

If you have all of your information ready, the application will take less than an hour to complete.

Complete a Food Stamp Re-evaluation

If you are currently receiving Food Stamps, you can complete your Food Stamp re-evaluation on idalink. When your re-evaluation is due, you will see a notification on the My Benefits screen.

Before starting your re-evaluation, make sure you have all of your required verification documents ready to submit.

When you are ready, click the Start Now button and follow the instructions.
